
David A. Sergun

1953-2016

David A. Sergun was born February 27, 1953, to Albert and Betty (Lichtenberger) Sergun. He went to school at a one-room country school until seventh grade, then attended and graduated from Arnold Public School.

David soon went to

Hayes, Kansas, where he worked construction and attended school. While at Hayes, David always had a chess board or two set up and postcards from friends from afar with their next move.

David loved to do drawings and improve on his artwork. He could draw almost anything. Another creative side of Dave was he started playing bass guitar and would play with bands once in a while.

David moved south and ended up in Atlanta, Georgia - a place he would call his forever home.

While there, he went back to school and became a computer programmer. He was able to travel a lot with his job, but was always happy to get back to Atlanta.

While in Atlanta, he also went to classes for his artwork and started painting portraits. Everyone loved his work, but Dave felt he could improve on it.

David passed away June 8, 2016, in his beloved neighborhood of friends.

He was preceded in death by his brother, Danny, and his dad, Albert Sergun.

He leaves his mom, Betty Sergun; sister Ruth Tullis; two nephews, Ed and Charles Tullis; and two great-nieces to mourn his death.

A graveside service was held June 17 at the Arnold Cemetery.

A family memorial has been established.
